Docket: IMM-3947-08

Citation: 2009 FC 359

Vancouver, British Columbia, April 8, 2009

PRESENT: The Honourable Madam Justice Dawson

BETWEEN:

EUN JUNG MOON YOON

Applicant
and

THE MINISTER OF CITIZENSHIP AND IMMIGRATION

Respondent

REASONS FOR JUDGMENT AND JUDGMENT

[1] The applicant, Ms. Yoon, is a citizen of the Republic of Korea. On August 25, 2005, she obtained a work permit at the Vancouver International Airport port of entry. This permit allowed Ms. Yoon to work in Canada as a “babysitter”. It is agreed that this work permit allowed Ms. Yoon to perform all of the duties set out in the definition of live-in caregiver contained in section 2 of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Regulations, SOR/2002-227 (Regulations).

[2] Ms. Yoon's work permit was renewed on November 5, 2007. Endorsed on the renewed work permit was the following remark:

TEMPORARY RESIDENT STATUS MAINTAINED AS PER R183(6). ELIGIBLE TO APPLY FOR PERMANENT RESIDENCE AFTER COMPLETING 24 MTHS FULLTIME
EMPLOYMENT IN 3 YEARS ENDING 25 AUG 2008. LCP.
SAME EMPLOYER. HRSDC #7294310.

[3] Subsequently, Ms. Yoon applied for permanent residence under the live-in caregiver class. Ms. Yoon's application was refused because an officer found that Ms. Yoon did not hold a work permit issued under the live-in caregiver class.

[4] On this application for judicial review of that decision, Ms. Yoon argues that:

- a. The decision is unreasonable and is based upon a misinterpretation of the Regulations.
- b. The respondent Minister breached the legitimate expectations which arose from his promise that Ms. Yoon would be "eligible to apply for permanent residence after completing 24 mths fulltime employment."

[5] This application for judicial review is dismissed because the decision was neither unreasonable nor based upon an incorrect interpretation of the Regulations. No substantive rights could arise by application of the doctrine of legitimate expectations.

The Regulatory Scheme

[6] The live-in caregiver program was established in order to meet a shortage of live-in caregivers in Canada. A key element of the program is that the Regulations permit participants to apply for permanent residence after two years of employment.

[7] The Minister submits, and I agree, that a central requirement of the program is that, in order to participate in the live-in caregiver program, a live-in caregiver application must be made and approved at a visa post outside of Canada. This requirement is made clear in the following provisions of the Regulations (all of the provisions referred to are set out in the appendix to these reasons).

[8] A foreign national in Canada may become a permanent resident if, among other things, it is established that he or she is a member of the live-in caregiver class. See: paragraph 72(1)(c) and paragraph 72(2)(a) of the Regulations.

[9] The live-in caregiver class is prescribed as a class of foreign nationals who may become permanent residents on the basis of the requirements set out in Division 3 of Part 6 of the Regulations. See: section 110 of the Regulations.

[10] A foreign national who seeks to enter Canada as a live-in caregiver must apply for a work permit in accordance with Part 11 of the Regulations. See: section 111 of the Regulations.

[11] Paragraph 198(2)(a) of the Regulations, found in Part 11 of the Regulations, provides that a foreign national may not apply for a work permit when entering Canada when employment is sought as a live-in caregiver.

[12] This provision is consistent with subsection 112(a) of the Regulations which states that a work permit shall not be issued to a foreign national who seeks to enter Canada as a live-in caregiver unless he or she "applied for a work permit as a live-in caregiver before entering Canada."

[13] Paragraph 200(3)(d) of the Regulations, also found in Part 11 of the Regulations, provides that an officer "shall not issue a work permit to a foreign national if [...] the foreign national seeks to enter Canada as a live-in caregiver and the foreign national does not meet the requirements of section 112" of the Regulations. As noted above, one of those requirements is that the foreign national must have applied for a work permit as a live-in caregiver before entering Canada.

[14] A foreign national becomes a member of the live-in caregiver class if, among other requirements, "they hold a work permit as a live-in caregiver." See: paragraph 113(1)(c) of the Regulations. To hold a work permit as a live-in caregiver, the foreign national must have applied for the work permit as a live-in caregiver before they entered Canada. See: subsection 112(a) of the Regulations.

[15] Finally, section 115 of the Regulations requires the foreign national to meet the requirements of sections 112 and 113 of the Regulations not just when they apply for a work permit, but also when the work permit is issued and when the foreign national becomes a permanent resident.

[16] Ms. Yoon acknowledges that she did not apply at a visa post outside of Canada for her work permit. She also acknowledges that she did not obtain her work permit abroad. Her work permit was issued to her at a Canadian port of entry. On the basis of the regulatory scheme described above, the officer correctly interpreted the regulations and reasonably concluded that Ms. Yoon was not a member of the live-in caregiver class. While she obtained a work permit at the port of entry that allowed her to work as a "babysitter", such work permit was not issued within the live-in caregiver program.

[17] Before leaving this point, I note that the tribunal record does not contain a copy of the original work permit issued to Ms. Yoon. Nor did she put this permit in evidence. The tribunal record does contain a copy of the renewed work permit. Chapter 14 of the Overseas Processing Manual is entitled "Processing Applicants for the Live-in Caregiver Program." Section 8.5 of that chapter notes that Citizenship and Immigration Canada will continue to use "9998-961 (a 7-digit synthetic immigration code) on LCP [live-in caregiver program] work permits" and that the code "LCP" should also be entered in the special program box of the work permit."

[18] Neither of these notations appears on the renewed work permit. This further supports the conclusion that Ms. Yoon was not a member of the live-in caregiver class and did not receive a work permit as a participant in the live-in caregiver program.

Legitimate Expectations

[19] Ms. Yoon says that promises must be kept and that she should have been granted permanent residence "on the basis of the promise contained in her work permit." The Minister responds that the notation relied upon by Ms. Yoon was entered on the work permit in error.

[20] Ms. Yoon's argument cannot succeed. No legitimate expectation can exist that is contrary to express provisions of the Regulations. Further, in Baker v. Canada (Minister of Citizenship and Immigration), [1999] 2 S.C.R. 817, at paragraph 26, the Supreme Court of Canada confirmed that "the doctrine of legitimate expectations cannot lead to substantive rights outside the procedural domain." What Ms. Yoon seeks is the conferral of a substantive, not a procedural, right. This cannot be obtained pursuant to the doctrine of legitimate expectations.

Conclusion

[21] For these reasons, the application for judicial review will be dismissed.

[22] Counsel posed no question for certification, and I agree that no question arises on this record.

JUDGMENT

THIS COURT ORDERS AND ADJUDGES that:

The application for judicial review is dismissed.
